"experience" have taught her this truth—upon her stout heart and firm nerves she has to rely for her defence and security.

But you are opposed to a Southern convention, if it should be intended to do more than the States already have done by resolutions. If more is intended, you consider it a "revolutionary body." This is gratuitous. The southern States have, through their Legislatures, frequently and earnestly protested and remonstrated against the assaults of the northern States upon the institution of slavery. Their resolutions have been unheeded, or, if not, have been received in an unfriendly and hostile spirit. The "little cloud like a man's hand" has become a "black cloud of thick darkness impending over this Union." This you admit. What more natural than that those who are exposed to the impending storm, who hear its thunders, should think of some "Franklin rod" to conduct in safety its lightnings to earth? That "Franklin rod" will be found in concentrated southern sentiment of adhesion to the Union as our fathers formed it, and a determination to protect themselves, if the barriers of the Constitution be broken down. The Virginia preamble and resolutions declare, that the tendency of the northern States is to "destroy" that mutual forbearance and fraternal affection, which formed and has sustained our confederacy, and finally to dissolve the Union itself; that we are anxious, if possible, to avert the evils which threaten us, and believe the most effectual means of doing this are to be found in the cordial union of the whole South, for the maintenance of the Constitution, and the preservation of the Union, if it can be preserved, and for their preservation threaten us, and believe the most effectual means of doing this are to be found in the cordial union of the whole South, for the maintenance of the Constitution, and the preservation of the Union, if it can be preserved, and for their preservation if it cannot. 'That regarding the convention proposed to be held at Nashville on the first Monday in June next as intended to enable the people of the South to take counsel together as to the best and most effectual means of resisting the aggressions of the North, of enforcing a compliance on their part with their constitutional obligations, and thereby of preserving the union of the States, now in imminent peril by reason of the course pursued by the non-slaveholding States and their representatives in Congress, in the cease-less agitation (and that, too, in the most unfriendly spirit) of questions involving the peace, the institutions, and the very existence of the southern States, and approving the object of said convention, as above set forth, the General Assembly doth recommend to the good people of this Commonwealth to send delegates thereto.''

The above sets forth, as I understand it, the objects of the Nashville convention to preserve the Union if it can be preserved, and to preserve the South if it can not be. This may serve to explain to you what you cannot "comprehend" in the expression of "an organized resistance promptly developed.' To be still more plain, that you may "comprehend," if the measures which are deprecated should be consummented, the Nashville convention will, I presume, suggest such means and measures as may be advisable for the South to adopt to preserve her liberty and independence.

Call this "revolutionary," if you choose, and be advisable for the South to adopt to preserve her liberty and independence. Call this "revolutionary," if you choose, and "make the most of it." Why should not "the people of the South take counsel together?" In a common danger there should be a free conference—"in a multitude of counsel there is wisdom." You say "there are restless spirits among 'us, who have calculated the value of the Union, and would perhaps sell it for a mess of pottage." This is language which, if not expected, might yet come from the North in denunciation of the South; but how is it to be regarded from the lips of a southern man, "dressed up in a little brief authority?" Will not his "sober second thought" pronounce it a slander upon the aggrieved, insulted, puthern man, "dressed up in a little brief and hority?" Will not his "sobor second thought" schoole was dismissed.

In a crisis like this, when the South is struggling igainst the North—the minority against the unappropriate the North—the minority—the weak against the struggling for constitutional covenanted rights—rights acknowledged and guarantied in the Constitution, yet trampled in the dust—rights of common equality and common justice, for them to be valued by the Executive of my State as "a mean of pottage," fills me with mortification; and I should blush for Florida if the sentiment found an echo from any part of her wide limits. "There are resiless spirits among us!" Where are they? Look to the legislatures of the southern States—whom do they replaced to the southern states and the littled from the high source from which it springs. I mean "to return with a clear conscience;" and, however I may differ with you, I anticipate no difference with the people of Florida as to the means by which "the honor, liberty, and welfare of our beloved State" has and will be defended. I am not willing to return and tell them, we have been "driven to the last trench, and beat down by brute force;" that "all the barriers and defences of the Constitution are beaten down, and the South deprived of her equal rights." I am not willing to do this, for the poor consolation that I may say to them, that "those who brought about this state of things have incurred the guilt and shame, and upon their heads will rest the curse." No, sir; no. I trust I have nobler aspirations and higher purposes. I wish to be the bearer of no such doleful tidings. No; let me tell them that the breaches in the Constitution have been repaired; that southern rights and State equality have at last been respected, at least in action by the free States, and this in spite of fanatical agitators and selfish demagogues at the North, and cold friends at the South. If otherwise, "the curse" will be upon the North, and still more concentrated upon the South—because she has not the apirit to preserve her freedom.

In conclusion, sir, I will imitate an example of yours, in sending this in printed form and through the public prints.

I am, with high respect, your fellow-citizen, JACKSON MORTON.

Igon Stramship.—A large iron steamship, the Helena Sloman, was launched at Hull, England, recently. She is designed as a regular trader between Glasgow and New York, and is fitted with Archimedean screw propellers. Her model is said to be exceedingly fine. Her length of keel is two hundred and two feet; breadth of beam, twenty-seven feet; and length over all, two hundred and forty-five feet. She will carry forty-eight thousand cubic feet of goods, with twenty days coal. The saloon will be sixty feet long, and fitted up in the most splendid style, having at the side family cabins, with forty-eight berths. The whole length of her between decks will be fitted up for second-class passengers. Her depth, when fully laden, will be ten feet six inches. She is the first of a number of screw liners intending to sail between the above ports.

The Legislature of Virginia, at its recent session made an appropriation of $10,000 for the construction of a railway, to test the value of French's in vention, whereby most important results in the ascension of any grades by secomotives and cars are said to be attained.

LAKE ERIE OPEN.—The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, of the 25th, announces that the steamer Canada, Capt. Willoughby, from Detroit, 23d inst., arrived off Buffalo harbor this morning about seven o'clock, and after two or three hours' severe trial, succeeded in breaking her way through the ice into the creek.

Missouri.—The Whigs of the fourth congressional district of Missouri have tendered the nomination for Congress to Col. Doniphan, the hero of Brazito and Sacramento. The Colonel declined, when the nomination was offered to C. E. Bowman, who accepted it.

ACADEMY BURNT.—The Union Academy, situated near Cresgh's Mill, Wilcox county, Ala., was consumed on the night of the 4th instant, together with all the books, maps, globes and furniture. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, as there was no fire left in the academy when the school was dismissed.

DIRECT TRADE.—The amount of cotton received in New Orleans from Mobile and Montgomery, as given in the price-current for the year 1848, commencing 1st September and extending to the 20th March, 1849, was 28,246 bales, and between the same dates for the years 1849 and 1850, the amount received is 23,103 bales. This exhibits a falling off 5,143 bales, notwithstanding the increased facilities for shipping cotton from the Alabama river to New Orleans.—Mobile Advertiser.

A VERY TRUTHFUL ANSWER.—Bunkum, in the Old North State, is undoubtedly the healthiest spot on earth, and it was on that account that some "lower country gentlemen" were surprised one day to see a Bunkumite at work opening an ominous-looking "hole in the ground." Of course they inquired 'hole in the ground."

"Oh, no, sir—they never die but once!"

They never asked that question "but once."

BALTIMORE, March 29-5 p. m. During the recent session of the Maryland Legislature, a bill was passed authorizing the Baltimore and Susquehanna Railroad Company to borrow $150,000 for the purpose of repairing and putting the road in good order. This bill will be unavailing unless sanctioned by the city authorities. It is now quite an interesting subject of discussion in the Council. I hope there will be no barriers thrown in the way of its passage.

Our market generally remains without much change. Small sales of Howard street and City Mills flour at $4 62].

United States vs. Dennis Dismond, indicted for keeping a disorderly house. Verdict, not guilty. Davidge and Semmes, for the defence.

FATAL ACCIDENT .- Yesterday morning, William Page, a mechanic employed on the interior work of the Smithsonian Institution, came to his death in the following manner: He was standing on a loose plank which lay across two of the beams of the flooring of the second story, engaged in knocking away some portion of the structure. At every stroke of his hammer the plank was moved under his feet by the forward motion of his body. One of the workmen warned Page of his danger, and immediately afterwards the plank tilted, and he fell to the ground. His skull was dreadfully fractured, and he lived but fifteen minutes.

The deceased was a young man, of good charac-

The deceased was a young man, of good charac-ter, and industrious habits.

The coroner's inquest returned a verdict in accordance with the above facts.

JUVENILE THIEVES .- Two white boys, about JUVENILE THIEVES.—Two white boys, about twelve years old, were arrested yesterday afternoon and taken before Police Justice Smith, to answer the charge of purloining shoes from the stores of Mesars. Hoover and Wilson, on Centre market space. The charge was fully sustained, and they committed to await their trial. This should prove a warning to the youth of our city to abstain from the first steps in vice, and to avoid evil company, which in the present case have caused these boys to be sent to jail, and, should they not reform, will probably consign them to the penitentiary.

New Obleans, March 29.

A destructive fire occurred yesterday morning in Triangle square, near the levee. Before the flames could be arrested, two hotels, a large bakery, and nine other buildings were destroyed. The total loss is estimated at ninety to one hundred thousand dollars, part of which is covered by insurance.

The cotton market is steady, with sales of 4,000 bales—good midding, 11½; fair, 11½ and 12 cents per lb.

There is nothing specially new to notice in other articles.

Boston, March 29.

The testimony on the part of the defence in the case of Dr. Webster has been closed. Several witnesses were introduced who proved positively that Dr. Parkman was seen at or about three o'clock on the afternoon of the day upon which he is alleged to have been murdered. The witnesses saw him themselves. The count in the indictment claims that the murder was committed between one and two o'clock in the afternoon. Beyond this the testimony to-day was unimportant. The court took a recess at two o'clock. The argument for the government will probably be commenced this afternoon.

GREAT AMERICAN ENGINEERING
A ND MECHANICAL WORK, just published in Medium folio, 75 cents.

Part III. of "Specimens of the Stone, Iron, and Timber Bridges, &c., &c., of the United States Railroads;" by George Duggan, Architect and Civil Engineer.

The present part contains beautifully executed plans, elevations, sections and isometrical views of the elegant timber arch, 275 feet span, at Cascade Creek, Pennsylvania, on the line of the New York and Eric railroad, and of a plank bridge 100 feet span across the Mohawk river near Rome, on the line of the U. and S. railroad, with the specifications, estimates, bills of timber, iron, &c.

N. B.—This work is publishing by subscription of the most eminent in the engineering profession of the United States, and will be completed in twelve parts, at 75 cents each, to those who remit their names and subscriptions before the 1st Maynext, after which the price will be raised to $1 per part.

To those making a present remittance of $5, and the remainder, $4, when they have been supplied with the first six parts, the work will be forwarded regularly as published. Parties remitting $9 shall receive it monthly post-page in any part of the United States.

"It is a work that was a great desideratum, and must prove of great benefit to the engineering profession generally, and especially to the tyro in practical engineering and mechanical knowledge; in truth, it strikes us, that it would require years of labor and patient toil on the part of a young engineer to prepare the drawings, and collect the information that will be embodied in this work, and can now be secured for the trifling sum of $9."

[Scientific American, March 16, 1850.

"In connexion with this subject (Iron Railroad Structures) we take occasion to call attention again to Mr. Duggan's valuable and expensive publication, exhibiting drawings, with full descriptions of the various stone, iron, and wood bridges, viaducts, tunnels, culverts, &c., of all the Railroads in the United States. CAUTION TO DRUGGISTS AND THE PUBLIC.—The unparalleled and astonishing efficacy of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry in all the diseases for which it is recommended—curing many cases after the skill of the best physicians were unavailing—has effected a large and increasing demand for it. This fact has caused unprincipled counterfeiters and imitators to palm off spurious mixtures, of similar name and appearance, for the genuine Balsam.

BE NOT DECEIVED BY IMPOSTORS. The public should be careful to get the genuine article, as the imitations and counterfeits, being got up by those who know nothing of medicines, or of the diseases of the human system, are entirely unsafe and dangerous.

From the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer, Feb. 8. 1848.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.

We have an utter abborrence for all kinds of puffs, and especially such as are calculated to mislead the public as to the curative virtues of patent medicines. There are doubtless many catch-penny nostroms, daily vended and hourly used, which are not only of no value, but absolutely deleterious to the physical man. There are other balsams, extracts, &c., not embraced, peradventure, in the pharmaceutic arrangements of the apothecary or regular physician, that are in certain cases of more value than all the prescriptions of Galen put together. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is admitted by the concurrent teatimony of those who have proved its virtues to be of the latter class. In colds and consumption, asthma and chronic coughs, as well as in other kindred diseases, it has been used with almost universal success. In a climate so changeable as this, superinducing and aggravating the family of diseases above alluded to, this medicine has a value not to be estimated.

None genuine unless signed I. BUTTS on the wrapper.

For sale by R. S. Pattersson, Washington D. C. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.
